Wherever the venue, this caterer will make it an affair to remember.

By FONG MUE CHERN

These days, you don't have to throw a dinner in a famous restaurant or five-star hotel to be assured of quality food and impressive set-ups.

With caterers like Stamford Catering, owned by the Select Group of Companies, and their experienced chefs and creative banquet teams, you can host a classy tea reception in a church, temple, or mosque or throw a sophisticated dinner in venues like the Singapore Art Museum or Sculpture Square.

And Stamford's menu packages, with themes such as Everlasting Tea and Romance Buffet, are no less creative. Taking the best of Asian cuisine, expect Thai-style roast beef on a spoon, handmade xiao long bao, Japanese yakitori skewers with teriyaki sauce, Singapore laksa... the list goes on.

For dinner, look forward to exciting combinations like Japanese maki sushi and Thai green papaya salad to start, mains such as butter chicken masala, Teppanyaki-sliced beef, spaghetti bolognese, and sweet treats like mini-egg tarts, mini-cheese cakes and more to end the meal. Or, work with the banquet team to totally customise your theme, setting or menu.

And no, unlike many caterers, they won't set up and leave – only to arrive at the end to pack up. Uniformed service staff will be on hand throughout to ensure you and your guests are well taken care of.

So go ahead, and start thinking out of the box. HWB
